The beautiful spring came, and when nature resumes her loveliness, the human soul is apt to revive also.

April feels like the time of year to refresh, renew, and rejuvenate. Flowers are blooming, days are longer, and the weather is warmer. I hope you find opportunities to enjoy this time of year.

You will have an opportunity to renew your knowledge about AAUW California by attending the virtual AAUW California Annual Event on Saturday, April 26, 10 AM–2 PM. This year's theme is Pivoting 4 Our Future. We'll gather on Zoom to recap accomplishments, be inspired by speakers, applaud the winners of state awards, hear the Speech Trek finalists, chat in multiple breakout rooms, and think about how AAUW—and YOU—can respond to today's dramatic social changes. Watch for registration information. The only gift you need to bring is you.

At the national level, AAUW shared their many accomplishments and provided an overview of the past year in their 2024 Annual Report. There is a lot of great information to refresh your understanding of what AAUW does to help women and girls. Read about it HERE.

Thank you to our Nominating Committee members Fran Bartholomew, Elaine Graves, and Harvalee Grimm for identifying members to fill our board positions. We look forward to rejuvenating next year's board with some new officers. Please vote and support these women!

We have a lot of fun activities planned for the next couple of months. Please find information about the April Program, our May End-of-Year celebration, the Shredding Event, and the San Ramon Art & Wind Festival ice cream sales in this newsletter.

We appreciate your support in all these areas to help keep our branch strong! Have a great April! Remember to refresh, renew, and rejuvenate at one of our branch events.

Meet STEM Trailblazer Adamaka Ajalo

Thursday April 17; 6:00–8:00 PM
Danville Congregational Church
989 San Ramon Valley Blvd., Danville

Adamaka Ajalo, an AAUW FUND Grant recipient, will talk about her initiative to transform the lives of more than 1,300 young women. In 2014, she founded Self-eSTEM, an organization that gives young women opportunities in science, technology, engineering, and math. Self-eSTEM provides culturally relevant education, training, and mentorship with a network of support.

Adamaka is an Oakland native. She worked for Visa, where she provided insights and recommendations influencing global workforce plans and talent development strategies. As the Director of Strategic Workforce Planning and Analytics, she had a unique tech role that gave her experience to grow and develop a passion for helping others. Adamaka brings her passion to her presentation, and we hope you will join us!

We're co-hosting this "Investing in Innovators" program with the Danville-Alamo-Walnut Creek and Livermore-Pleasanton-Dublin branches.

Tech Trek

Update: Campers Selected

We received 17 nominations from the four middle schools in San Ramon and selected 12 girls to interview. We selected 6 girls to attend camp at Sonoma State and 2 girls to attend virtual camp. The students shared a lot of enthusiasm and interest in STEM, making it a real challenge to select only 8 girls.

Thank you to the Tech Trek Committee members for their support and interest in selecting the campers. Our School Outreach Coordinator was Margo James. Our Application Readers were Ashley Cherry, Purvi Rawal, Becky Said, and Kathy Senti. Our Interview Team was led by Karen Rice and included Ashley Cherry, Sindhura Putumbaka, and Nancy Vandell. We appreciate all you do to make this a success!

Our next task is to have the campers complete their forms and get ready for camp.

Dorm monitors and camp volunteers are still needed for the residential camp! Coaches are still needed for virtual camp! Please let us know if you are interested in joining the campers for a week of fun, exciting adventures. Camp at Sonoma State is June 22–28 and Virtual Camp is July 20–25. Volunteers can choose to go for a day or two—it's a great way to see how much these girls enjoy their Tech Trek experience!

Renaissance Scholars Update

General Information Roshawn Campbell (Renaissance Scholars Coordinator) has shared with us that they will have 20 graduates this year from this program. This is the largest number to date. It's nice to feel that, with our branch's support, we have been a part in these students' successes.

On February 18, Loranne Weir and Susan Walker-Christensen met with our two CSUEB Renaissance Scholars to present them with their second $750 check and to update their progress toward their personal and academic goals.

Both of these young women were very positive and reported that they are doing well in general and that they very much appreciate the support from our organization. A brief summary of their current status follows:

Leslie Hernandez

Leslie reported that she did well last semester and is eagerly looking toward her graduation. Her official date will be fall semester, but she is very excited to be eligible to walk in the May graduation ceremony. She will be completing her Bachelor's degree in Sociology. Although she has not made a specific commitment yet, her interests following graduation include pursuing a career in the criminal justice field or working as a case manager with youth services. Currently, she continues to work in San Leandro as a Resident Advocate at a housing facility for women who are victims of domestic violence.

Nicole Silliman

Nicole was very excited to report that she has qualified for the Honor Society at CSUEB! She will graduate in May with a Master's in Social Work. Nicole will continue to pursue the hours and coursework needed to qualify for her license as a Licensed Clinical Social Worker. She is currently working as an intern in San Mateo County and is applying for positions in several Bay Area counties following graduation. She is most interested in working in a smaller county like San Mateo, as she feels like there is a greater opportunity for personal contact and success with clients and programs in this setting.

Communication

AVOID EMAIL SCAMS THAT APPEAR TO COME FROM FRIENDS OR FAMILY

By Michelle Baer and Donna Holmes, Directors, Communication Committee Co-chairs,
communications@aauw-ca.org

Email scams don't always pretend to be large corporations; sometimes they impersonate people you know – family, friends, or even colleagues. These scams can be especially dangerous because they are working to exploit established trust.

Here are four tips to recognizing and avoiding email scams.

1. Be suspicious of unusual requests. If a friend or family member suddenly emails you asking for money, gift cards, or sensitive information, be skeptical.
2. Look at the writing style. Proceed with caution if you encounter unusual wording, spelling or grammatical errors, or phrasing that just doesn't "sound like" the person.
3. Stay calm. Scammers frequently rely on urgent language to drive immediate action. Do not rush to respond to the request until you determine its validity.
4. Look carefully at the sender's email address. Many email systems just show you the sender's display name, which is easy to manipulate. The email address itself must be inspected. In most systems you can hover your mouse over the sender's name to reveal their email address. Check the email address carefully. Frequently, the email address is entirely wrong and easy to dismiss as fraudulent. In more sophisticated scams, the email address may be only slightly different.
5. If you have identified the email address as incorrect, then delete the message (optionally, report as spam). However, if after reviewing an email message, you still have some doubts, how do you proceed? First, it is very important to NOT reply to the message and do NOT click on any links or attachments.

Then, reach out to the purported sender directly, such as by a phone call or text, to validate whether the message is authentic.

With a bit of knowledge and careful attention, it is possible to avoid many email scams.

Prepare for Sexual Assault Prevention Month in April

By Claire Noonan, Member AAUW California Public Policy Committee

Sexual assault violence prevention calls for the creation of safer communities. Addressing the root causes of this kind of violence is difficult as it involves a multipronged approach, including improving street and housing conditions, providing education, and offering support services. We should work to advance policies at workplaces and schools, discuss sexual assault and its consequences with friends and family, and prioritize prevention in our communities.

Official channels for raising awareness about sexual assault violence and creating and implementing the policies needed for prevention has a long history in the United States; however, given the current administration's attack on "DEI," much of this work is now under threat of being dismantled.

Violence awareness began officially when the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA) became law in 1984, providing the primary federal funding for domestic violence victims and their children via emergency shelters and related assistance. The Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), passed by Congress in 1994, is comprehensive federal legislation to end violence against women. In 2001, the National Sexual Violence Resource Center coordinated the first national Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM), building on years of advocacy and awareness-building. In 2009, President Barack Obama officially declared April to be Sexual Assault Awareness Month, which presidents have proclaimed by every year since then.

As part of this wider federal push, awareness-raising and prevention efforts around sexual assault violence have been more firmly embedded in core policies and practices. For instance, the Department of Defense has been trying to create a culture to eliminate sexual assault, requiring a personal commitment from all Service members. Educational institutions have benefitted as well: the final Title IX revisions in April 2024 by President Joe Biden reflected the stronger shift to prevent assault actions on school campuses. These revisions also sought to protect more people, expanding the definition of "sex-based harassment" to include harassment based on sex characteristics, sexual orientation, gender identity, sex stereotypes, and pregnancy. At the state level, in September 2024 Governor Newsom signed eight bills on domestic violence. The legislation created a new victims' services fund using penalties from white-collar crimes and expanded the ability of victims to access restraining orders.

While all of this movement has been positive, by the second week of President Donald Trump's current administration, the Office of Management and Budget had ordered a freeze of all federal financial assistance in all agencies including those that oversee government programs and funding for organizations that provide domestic violence and sexual assault services, such as Health and Human Services, Center for Disease Control, and the Department of Justice. Multiple court orders have blocked the freezes from taking effect, but in some cases funds haven't been received for programs aimed at preventing sexual violence.

In addition, the current Administration has attacked the Office of Family Violence Prevention and Services and the Office on Violence Against Women, who must now disclose information that may further eliminate funding and resources, such as whether grants are being used to support "removable or illegal aliens or immigrants;" to "promote gender ideology;" or to advance "illegal DEI" programs—although at the time of writing, early challenges have signaled that enforcement of these provisions and denial of funding may be unconstitutional.

As individuals and non-profit organizations, we can take action. We can contact our Congressmembers and state officials to back efforts to get the money flowing to relevant organizations and programs that raise awareness of and prevent sexual assault violence.

We can also act in our local communities to reduce sexual assault violence. We can ask to improve lighting to make streets and other public spaces safer. We can make sure our city, county, and public health officials promote policies for families and children, address economic security, and provide access to safe, stable housing. We can collaborate with community-led organizations that coordinate resources and services that help with trauma, mental health and substance use, all of which lead to sexual abuse. (from CDC-Violence Prevention)

Overall, we can all work to support the organizations country-wide that are on the front lines of dealing with sexual assault violence. Click here <https://www.dvawareness.org/free-materials> for downloadable free materials to share from the Domestic Violence Awareness Project.
